COMMUNITY EDUCATION TOOLS

Walking the walk: A sexual violence awareness exercise. Houston Area Women's Center. Contact: (713) 528-6798 or www.hawc.org. This interactive exercise focuses on the issues and emotions that survivors of sexual violence face. By taking on the role of a survivor, participants will learn about the different responses from family, friends and the community and begin to understand the complexity of sexual violence.

In her shoes. Washington State Coalition Against Domestic Violence. Contact: (306) 586-1022 or www.wcadsv.org. This is an interactive exercise based on the real-life successes and struggles of women who have been battered. The simulation illustrates how all aspects of a community have a role in ending violence against women.

In her shoes: The economic justice edition. Washington State Coalition Against Domestic Violence. Contact: (306) 586-1022 or www.wcadsv.org. Similar to the original edition, this expanded version illustrates the additional struggles women face when they are poor as well as providing the abusers' perspective.

Pence, E. (1987). In our best interest: A process for personal and social change. Duluth, MN: Minnesota Program Development. This is an essential resource for anyone who works with women who have been battered. In Our Best Interest clearly explains how to teach critical thinking skills, offers topics for support groups and provides exercises to help women understand their relationship to the world and global attitudes that condone violence against women.
